Searching for Healthcare Information: Training Programme Spring 2006

Training venue: Your workplace or East Surrey or Crawley Hospital Libraries, at a time convenient to you.

• Healthcare Information & Literature Searching

Aim:	Learn to search for journal article abstracts or citations using quality health databases, including PsycINFO, Medline, BNI, CINAHL & DH-Data, plus over 1,000 full-text journals.
Good For:	Evidence-based practice, research, audit, or guideline writing. Databases for all disciplines, including medical, nursing, psychology/psychiatry, the therapies, and health management. Requires some Internet experience.

• There's more to the Internet than Google!

Aim:	Learn to find quality web pages and search useful websites, such as the National electronic Library for Health (the NHS gateway to health information) including specialist Mental Health & Learning Disabilities libraries.
Good For:	Useful websites. Literature and information searching novices.

• e-Resources 'Grand Tour'

Aim:	Take a 'grand tour' of the diverse online resources provided nationally and locally by your health library. Gain an overview of which resource specialises in which type of question and subject area, including fulltext mental health reference books and much more.
Good For:	Confident Internet users who want to know what is out there for them.
